

“There Was So Much Blood”

The British Columbia Health Ministry admitted that the remains of babies destroyed by abortion in B.C. facilities were ending up in a waste-to-power facility in the United State, providing electricity for residents of Oregon.

In 2007, an article – ironically titled “Burn, Baby, Burn” – in the Salem Weekly, the Willamette Live, reported that the Covanta Marion, Inc. plant in the unincorporated community of Brooks, Oregon, burned about 800 tons of medical waste per year.

Bud Waterman, a temporary worker at Covanta Marion, Inc. remembered how the extra-long Stericycle trailers would pull up to the plant, transporting “biomedical waste” from British Columbia.

“It would make you sick, especially if you had to clean it up or have to pull a box off the trailer,” he told the local KOIN 6 TV news. “There was so much blood.”

KOIN TV reported that the mothers of the aborted children in British Columbia were led to believe their babies would be cremated.

On April 23, 2014, the Marion County officials expressed their shock upon learning of the situation. “We were outraged and disgusted that this material [“material”??] could be included in medical waste received at the facility.”

But Waterman isn’t convinced by the officials’ statement. He said: “They knew it; they had to.”

Marion County Commissioners met in a special session on April 24 to immediately prohibit the use of medical waste until the statute can permanently exclude the use of aborted fetal tissue.

This news story broke just one month after the report that more than 15,000 aborted babies have been incinerated along with other “medical waste” to heat and generate power for British hospitals.

Population Control

According to Population Research Institute (PRI) millionaire Warren Buffet, through his Foundation, has given away $367 million to “support the most radical aspects of the population control movement.” Examples are:

$2 million – to fund clinical trials of RU-486

$2 million – for the distribution of chemical which sterilizes a woman by burning her fallopian tubes – illegal in the U.S., but used in Vietnam, India, and other nations.

$20 million grant to International Projects Assistance Services (IPAS) which manufactures and distributes manual vacuum aspirators, used for performing abortions in the Third World.

According to Wikipedia, Planned Parenthood received $3.8 million from Buffet’s Foundation in 1999 alone.

In 2006, Access Philanthropy reported that “[m]ore than 100 PP affiliates received grants ranging from $5,000 to $500,000 during the last three years.”

The Buffet Foundation has now hired Tracy Weitz, PhD, MPA, to head its domestic operation. Weitz is reportedly the California leader supporting the legalization of “non-physician” abortions in that state.

In October 2013, Gov. Jerry Brown passed the bill to allow non-physicians to do first trimester suction abortions. Medical abortions by non-physicians were allowed since 2003.

Now in charge of Buffet’s Foundation’s purse strings, Weitz’s bio states that her “current research focuses on innovative strategies to expand abortion provision in the U.S.”

The President's Corner

With another election on the horizon, the meaning of the term “pro-life” is again being stretched in many different directions.

Wendy Davis, the Texas legislator who engaged “in a marathon filibuster against a bill to stop abortionists from killing unborn children who can feel pain,” has stretched the definition past the breaking point by describing herself as pro-life.<sup>1</sup>

Someone who is pro-life does not filibuster pro-life bills. A person who is truly pro-life recognizes that human life must be defended from fertilization through natural death.

In order to gauge the positions of the current candidates in the upcoming primary election, we have sent them a survey in which we seek to learn their perspectives on what it means to be pro-life.

As an aid to you, we have published in this newsletter those surveys which have been returned to us. When you go to vote in the primary, please keep in mind the positions of the various candidates and vote to defend life.

Where Will You Go?” – # 4

This is part 4 of the Letter to the Editor from Maria Sachs about living in Germany with the Nazis during the 2nd world war.

These [women] are cursing even the footsteps of those who created this kind of life for them. The ones who advocated legalized abortion twenty years ago are killed with “mercy” and “dignity” today.

And now, for the Americans reading this and all Americans the world over. You, who at once became such outstanding experts of freedom over your bodies, who never went hungry or never suffered as we did, why don't you ask those who were there?

Why don't you ask the poor, the hungry, the unwanted if they would exchange life for death willingly to assure your comfort and free you from burdens and responsibilities?

Why hand out the death sentence to the unborn? Is it because they cannot defend themselves yet and you do not have to listen to their cries or watch their decomposed bodies as you watched on TV as Hitler and Stalin exterminated us?

You were horrified then, yet now you are demanding the right to be executioners like Stalin and Hitler, too. What are you doing? Are you playing the game of ostrich? In my country, we learned the hard way that by eliminating the innocent we can never be happy. Now we are begging the forgiveness of God. I hope it is not too late.

Amazing News – a 17-Year-Old Beats an Incumbent State Legislator

In West Virginia, 17-year-old Saira Blair, who graduates this month, ran on a pro-life platform to beat incumbent state legislator, Larry Kump. She will not be eligible to vote until July. Saira campaigned on an anti-abortion, pro-Second Amendment platform. "I think I'm fully capable of doing the job and I don't think it's rocket science by any means – not if you just listen to the people," she told the Martinsburg Herald-Mail.

Teddy & Cerebral Palsy

In, 2013, Kelly O'Brien produced a film called "Softening" covering a five year span, telling the story of her family and everyday life with their daughter, Emma, and their son, Teddy, who was born with cerebral palsy.

The film captures Emma's love for Teddy, not weighted down by disappointment, or sadness. Emma and Teddy are active together. He is immensely happy and Emma's pride is abundant.

We see, clearly, that Teddy is not reduced to merely being a child "with severe physical and developmental disabilities."

Far more important, he is a human being in his own right: Kelly's and Terence's son, and Emma's brother – a brother she loves unconditionally.

Primary Elections are June 24, 2014.

Grayson Hears His Father

Children's physical disabilities are all too often a reason for parents to decide to have an abortion, but sometimes parents choose life and then the miracle of modern technology takes over.

That is the case for a three-year-old boy who is now hearing the world — and his father — for the first time thanks to an auditory brain stem implant.

Little Grayson Clamp was born without his cochlear nerves — the nerves necessary to transmit sound from the inner ear to the brain.

A cochlear implant did not work so his parents went to the next option.

They enrolled Grayson in a research trial at the University of North Carolina Hospitals in Chapel Hill, N.C.

UNC Healthcare reported: "Three weeks ago, he became the first child in the U.S. to receive an auditory brain stem implant."
